American Art
Other Voices, Other Stories

live webinar with Cliff Tisdell

Chappaqua Library
hosted by Joan Kuhn

August 6, 2:00 PM

The narrative of American art is filled with stories of artists who were not part of the mainstream because they are minorities. The established worlds of painting, sculpture and the performing arts are often shut off to Native Americans, women, blacks and other people of color. Their voices are often not taken seriously. Fortunately, we live in a time where other voices are being celebrated.

American Art: Other Voices, Other Stories focuses on two outstanding artists who struggled to make contributions in America, including: Japanese American sculptor Isamu Noguchi, Native American painter T.C. Cannon and photographer Ming Smith.

Cliff Tisdell is a painter and visual artist. Other talks include Joseph Cornell: Armchair Voyager, Triumph of Pan: Picasso in Occupied Paris, Velazquez: Strokes of Genius and Artists Face Censorship: Veronese to Pussy Riot.
